Here to Stay - Jim Kirst

James J. Kirst is an owner who takes much more than just a passing interest in his basketball team.

Thus it comes as little surprise that Kirst, one of the world's largest earth-movers, placed the largest road-block in the path of a merger between the fast-rising American Basketball Association and the National Basketball Association.

"We are in Los Angeles to stay!" Kirst has said several times of late, especially when the merger rumors became stronger and stronger.

"If there is to be a merger," Kirst stated, "there will have to be two teams in the Los Angeles area, because we are not moving.

"Los Angeles is our town!"

Thus the congenial Stars owner, who has been moving mountains in a strong bid to build an exciting, winning basketball team in Los Angeles, has taken a firm stand and intends to remain firmly implanted in his Sports Arena acreage.

Kirst, 49, a resident of La Canada with his wife Marcella and two sons (James Jr., 23, and Greg, 16) and two lovely daughters (Dana, 19, and Mary, 13) is a staunch advocate of the American Basketball Association.

"I really like the red, white and blue basketball, it's patriotic as heck!" Kirst states proudly. "And our three-point play is really exciting."

Kirst, a man of much patience and desire, also has the money to make the Stars shine bright in the American Basketball Association firmament and leaves no doubt that those are his intentions.

He has developed a first-class front office, hired a first-class coach and with his pocketbook has been steadily building a first-class team.

There are those who continue to say Kirst, sole owner of Kirst Construction Co., must have moved heaven and earth to do these things. Why not—he's one of the best earth movers in the nation.

But one piece of earth he's not about to let anyone move from under him is Los Angeles!

A 'Hardy' General Manager

Look up his last name in the dictionary and you'll find the Los Angeles Stars' general manager is just what his name implies—vigorous, enduring, bold and resolute!

Look up Jim Hardy in his Sports Arena office and you'll find him on a bold and determined collision course with success—success marked by a winning team for the Los Angeles entry in the Red, White and Blue American Basketball Association.

And if there's any flag-waving to be done, Hardy does it for the City of Los Angeles—hoping both L.A. and the Stars will wave the ABA championship flag one day real soon.

"We're the Los Angeles Stars and we're here to stay!" Hardy emphasized for the press with the television cameras grinding away just prior to the 1969 season tipoff.

"If anyone is going to move, let it be Cookey Baby!" Hardy said with a smile overtaking his handsome, athletic looking face. "In fact," he continued, "that other team has already moved out of Los Angeles. They're the Inglewood Lakers!"

Hardy displays this determination and bold outlook in all he does as the Stars' general manager. His never-ending enthusiasm and dynamic personality are two of the most important ingredients of his continued success—on the college and professional football field and in business.

And more important, now, as the hard-working general manager of the Stars. His outlook ,energy and extensive background in pro sports all lend to his new found success in the exciting world of ABA basketball.

First there was the signing of Bill Sharman as the Stars coach, then his prized crop of rookies last season, among them Larry Miller, a standout member of the ABA's 1969 All-Rookie Team.

This season he signed one of the nation's most prized collegiate stars, Simmie Hill, and now his prize plum—luring National Basketball Association star Zelmo Beaty away from the Atlanta Hawks to become a member of the Stars and the fast-growing ABA.

Typical of Hardy was the promotional gimmick he undertook prior to the start of last year's season. Calling it "Star Trek", Hardy bounced the ABA basketball more than 300 miles, as he walked through 62 Southland cities, shaking hands and telling the public about his new team.

That was just the beginning.

Jim Hardy's every effort these days may be termed "Star Trek", as he continues to take several large steps for the Los Angeles Stars and the American Basketball Association.

The Coach - Bill Sharman

DEDICATION AND PATIENCE. Prime attributes of a successful coach. Also descriptive terms when talking about Los Angeles Star's head man, Bill Sharman.

Ask Star's owner Jim Kirst what he thinks of Bill Sharman:

"He is absolutely the most dedicated individual I have ever known. A complete perfectionist. He has incredible patience with young players. No doubt about it, Sharman is one of the best basketball coaches alive."

Last season was a frustrating one for Sharman who suffered his first losing season as a player or coach. Surrounded by eight unseasoned rookies, he displayed great patience and understanding as he developed their talents over the long 78-game schedule.

One of college and pro basketball's most fabled names Sharman's athletic career is one of the most phenomenal of any athlete of the past two decades.

An All-American at USC in 1949 and '50, he set a Pacific Coast scoring record of 238 points in 12 games as a senior.

11-year veteran of the NBA during which he played on four World Championship and five Eastern Division winners with the Celtics . . . Played in eight All-Star games scoring 102 points for a 12.8 average and was MVP in the '54 contest . . . Averaged 18.5 in 10 playoff series spanning 78 games . . . Named to the NBA All-League first team four times and the second squad three times . . . Still holds the all-time career record for free throws with a mark of .932 set in 1957-58 (342 of 367), a mark that has never been remotely approached by professional players.

An outfielder-first baseman at USC he later played in the Brooklyn Dodger chain and spent some time with the parent club.

A virtual one-man sports squad during his high school days at Porterville, California, he was named the Best Athlete in the State in 1944. He starred in football, baseball, basketball, track and tennis. In track he competed in the shot put, pavelin, discus and numerous running events.

Add amateur boxing to his list of accomplishments. In tennis he was state amateur singles champion. He's a fine golfer and his son Jerry is currently the golf pro at Ontario National Course in Ontario, Ca.

Sharman's first coaching job was with the Los Angeles Jets and later the Cleveland Pipers in the old ABL. He coached in the collegiate ranks at Cal. State L.A. from 1962 to 1964. In 1966-67 he coached the San Francisco Warriors to the NBA Western Division title and in his two seasons in the Bay City won 87 games while losing 76.

Zelmo Beaty

CENTER 6'9" 235
PRAIRIE VIEW

A BIG MAN IN THE FUTURE PLANS OF THE LOS ANGELES STARS.

Zelmo Beaty is considered to be one of the premier centers in all of basketball. A superstar in the NBA while playing for the St. Louis and Atlanta Hawks, Zelmo reached for job security in signing a four-year pact with owner Jim Kirst of the Stars.

A high-scoring and rebounding ace for the Hawks for the past seven years, Zelmo is expected to sit out this season and then lead the Stars to Western Division title in 1970-71.

"I signed because of the security the contract with the Stars provided," said Beaty at a Los Angeles press conference. "I plan to keep in good physical shape."

Zelmo means business. The first thing he did was move his wife, small daughter and son, to Los Angeles.

Star's owner Jim Kirst was ecstatic over the acquisition of the 6-9 center. "With Beaty in Los Angeles, Dave Bing headed for the Washington Caps and Billy Cunningham going to Carolina, it should be solid proof that the ABA and the Los Angeles Stars mean business."

Beaty is just 29 years old and last year had his highest NBA scoring average at 21.5. He graduated from Prairie View College in Texas in 1962 and joined the Hawks the same year. A fine outside shooter for a big man, he has averaged 17 points per game during his seven years in the "other league."

The ABA Race at a Glance

The Oakland Oaks pulled the "rags-to-riches" bit last year, jumping from a frightful sixth place finish (22 wins 65 losses) in 1967-68 to an ABA championship (60 wins 18 losses).

The setting has changed and there is a new coach on the premises, but the Oakland Oaks will be playing under the guise of the Washington Caps this season. And guess what? The Oaks, rather the Caps, are picked to win the ABA title again.

Al Bianchi, a longtime NBA great as a player and later as coach of the Seattle Supersonics, replaces Alex Hannum at the Cap helm. He has Super Rick Barry back in the fold and that means a 34 point per game average. Then there is Wonderous Warren Armstrong, last year's Rookie-of-the-Year and his 21.5 average.

Prognosticators are tabbing the Denver Rockets and Spencer Haywood as prime threats to unseat Barry and company. Haywood was good enough to lead the nation in rebounding as a sophomore with 21.5 per game and dunked 31.8 in the scoring column.

Los Angeles, New Orleans and Dallas are expected to dogfight for the other two playoff berths. The Stars improved considerably and have a year of seasoning plus a fine rookie crop. The Bucs and Chaps go with their tried lineups. New Orleans has the best two-season mark in the ABA books, (94-62).

Indiana is given the nod again to capture the Eastern Division race with their great front line of Netolicky, Daniels (last year's MVP) and Roger Brown.

Miami came close last year missing by just one game and grabbed LaSalle's Larry Cannon for a cool $250,000. Kentucky has the shooters but may be suspect in the front court. Pittsburgh must get along without Connie Hawkins while the Nets and Cougars will try to muscle the Pipers for fourth place.

No doubt about it, the ABA will be greatly improved. There are a passle of top-notch rookies like Simmie Hill and Willie Wise of the Stars, the Chaps' Tom Hagan, Bill Bunting and Gene Littles of the Cougars, Indiana's Bob Arnzen, George Thompson from Marquette now with Pittsburgh and of course the fabulous Spencer Haywood.

About the ABA

JIM GARDNER — President of the ABA

Purchased the Houston Mavericks near the end of last season and moved them to Carolina . . . Strictly a man of action and a born leader . . . Has successfully filled the leadership role left vacant with the retirement of George Mikan . . . Led the league in player raids on the NBA by signing Billy Cunningham from the Philadelphia 76ers . . . Self-made millionaire made his money in Hardee's, a carry-out hamburger chain . . . Former Republican candidate for governor of North Carolina.

THURLO E. McCRADY — Executive Administrator

Capably filling the shoes of the departed George Mikan, for whom he served as assistant the past two years . . . Former assistant to Commissioner Joe Foss when the American Football League was launched in 1959 . . . In addition to his administrative load, McCrady's duties include making out the complex ABA schedule, made especially tough this year with the late franchise change.

LEE MEADE — Publicity Director

Took over as head of the publicity bureau shortly after the league was formed . . . Former Sports Editor of the Denver Post . . . Aside from numerous press releases that go out to thousands of newspapers and radio and TV stations, he compiles all of the ABA statistics . . . Moved from Minneapolis to Rye City, N.Y. with his wife and three children.

NORM DRUCKER — Supervisor of Officials

A welcome addition to the ABA fold . . . An official in the NBA for 15 years, he came to the ABA along with Joe Gushue, Earl Strom and John Vanak, all considered to be the cream of the NBA basketball officials . . . Played 4 years in the American Professional League after graduating from City College of New York . . . Will be in charge of all ABA officials and will take an active part in refereeing games himself.

THE 3-POINT PLAY — The ABA has instituted an exciting offensive weapon, the 3-point play. Any player hitting a field goal from outside a 23-foot 9-inch arc is credited with three points rather than two. This gives the little fellow a chance and takes some of the offensive stress from the giants of the game.

THE 30 SECOND CLOCK — Another ABA innovation differing from the NBA limit of 24 seconds. The additional time allows a slightly more deliberate offense with a greater chance to work the ball around and set up plays.

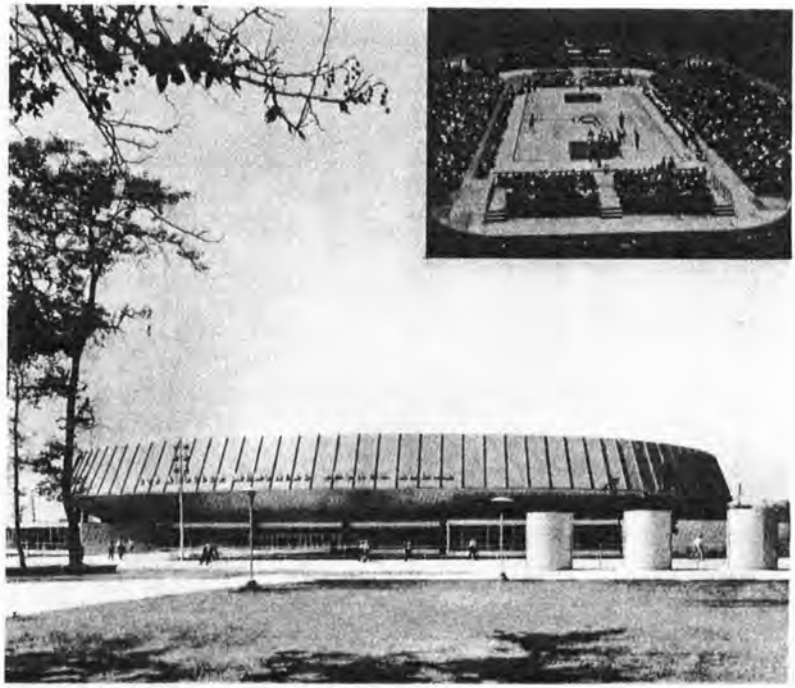
HOME OF THE LOS ANGELES STARS



LOS ANGELES MEMORIAL SPORTS ARENA

One of the most versatile and functional buildings of its kind in the world, the Los Angeles Memorial Sports Arena is an ideal setting for the sport of basketball.

Basketball has been an intricate part of this building's glorious nine-and-one-half year history. There have been many world professional championship games played here, including the 1968 National Collegiate Athletic Association (NACC) championships which were contested here in 1968. The crowd of 15,742 for the finals that year between UCLA and North Carolina, stands as the largest gathering to see a basketball game of any kind indoors in the City of Los Angeles and its Memorial Sports Arena's history.

As part of the most lucrative Coliseum-Arena complex in the world, the Los Angeles Stars of the American Basketball Association have upwards of 15,500 seats at their disposal.

Los Angeles Star basketball has added many thrilling moments to L.A. Sports Arena history.

Every type of show, event and entertainment has made use of the multi-purpose building dedicated to those who lost their lives in World War II, the Korean conflict and Vietnam.
